Brother Christensen's Micro Training

Master List of trainings

REL290A and REL290B courses will have each book chapter embedded into the course as a PDF. This means students will have direct access to The Divine Gift of Forgiveness through the course itself instead of through a downloadable eBook. This should make the required readings easier to access and remove a task that has previously required coordination and support.

Religion Courses information

This is what teachers see.
Notice there are lessons 3 & 4
You will study both lessons and discuss them in class. You will not get through everything in both lessons so prayerfully consider the needs of your class.

ldsbot.com
An AI chat bot that uses only LDS references for searches.
For questions like: What are some conference talks that discuss Jesus Christ being the creator of the earth?
Should only be used as a search engine for finding original references.
*All answers should be drawn from the original conference talks, scriptures, and references shown by the bot. It is still capable of mistakes. Never directly quote the bot.

Using AI:
AI is a useful tool for refining information, asking general questions and understanding policy.
It should never be used for spiritual guidance, reflections, or in the place of human communication.
Good for writing information communication.*
Bad for writing a spiritual message for your class.*

Can I use social media posts?
Yes, but only from the official church social media pages. Never use a video or picture from a secondary/fan account.

Can I use devotionals or Byu talks?
Yes, any talk given by the apostles and prophets can be used in class.

Can I show scenes from The Chosen?
No. While spiritual in nature and encouraging spiritually, The Chosen filming team is not in affiliation with the LDS church and cannot be used in official class curriculum.

Attendance

Manual attendance must be taken for accurate records
Zoom recordings, Zoom reports are inaccurate and do not reflect correct student count or time of attendance.
If a student does not turn on their camera for the duration of the class, or participate with audio or participate in chat they will not be anywhere on the recording.
User reports have stated that Zoom Reports also does not accurately reflect participants and the time attended.

What can I use for attendance?
This can be a paper, spreadsheet, or screenshot. (For international classes do your best, but remember that the main focus is the spirit of the class not attendance accuracy.)

Students need to be present for a majority of the class and participate fully.
Students are encouraged but not required to have cameras on, audio working, or participate in chat as much as possible.

Any policy for your particular class regarding attendance in your class (a point system or time frame requirement) must be communicated to students in clear instructions.

According to the current syllabus, weekly Religion gatherings are an essential part of the course. Students are expected to attend, arrive on time, stay for the entire gathering, and participate. Missing gatherings or leaving early may negatively affect both their learning and their final grade.

Reflections

Reflections

Encourage students to have a deep meaningful reflection.

For international classes
Google translate is an appropriate way to convey reflections when english skills feel lacking.
Using AI for reflections is not allowed. For international classes this may need to be reiterated.

If you suspect AI was used for a reflection:
Go to GPTZero.me copy and paste the reflection into the text box and press check.
It will tell you if it was human, or what percent was AI.
If it comes back as AI, respectfully contact your student and let them know they will need to resubmit their reflection to get full points.

Commenting on Reflections should always be with kindness and respect.
Using reflections in lessons, as examples, or quotes should always be with explicit permission from the student.

Elder Gong, June 2026 “Use Technology Wisely”
Artificial intelligence can answer questions, but it cannot answer prayers. It can organize information, but it cannot offer revelation, covenant connection, or divine truth.
In our personal lives, please use AI for logistics and drafts, but not as a substitute for trusted relationships. Set boundaries.

International classes

If you are an english speaker these courses will be in english.
Some students are new to english and may have a hard time reading or speaking without thick accents.
Closed caption can be turned on by clicking More.

Time zone

Make sure you are listing the class time accurate to the area of your class.
*I always list my time of meeting like this:
Class time: Thursdays 5pm (UTC-6) (Salt Lake City, Utah, USA Time- 8:00 pm)
Google what time it is in Salt Lake City to make sure your on time for class.

Tips

- Set announcements to auto post one hour before class to remind students at the start of class time.
- No video? Ask student to change their profile pictures to a picture of themselves. That way you can see their faces instead of a black screen.
- Break out rooms: Even if you do not have a very talkative class, breakout rooms can encourage students who would not usually speak to feel like they have a space among peers to speak.
- Assigning a leader can help them draw others out of their shell.
- When struggling with communication remember to make things clear beyond just words. Big hellos and big goodbyes help students understand the beginning and end of class.

Whats app

Did you know students have to pay for the internet? Every Time they open the internet! (We remember those days)
Lots of students go to local libraries, church buildings, or places with free wifi. Often they can only get there once or twice a week.
Announcements can be easily missed!
Whats app is great to use to reiterate announcements, post the zoom link for availability and help students have a non-internet based connection.

However it is not required and should not be used in replacement of canvas or zoom. Prayerfully consider this resource for your particular class.
